

As constant and daily internet users, one of the best parts of searching the web in this Country is the reasonable expectation that the content we are receiving content as the author intends; This is free speech and equal opportunity at work! What if small business owners couldn't have their ads seen, or only those with disposable income or could access factual information about the world?

Left unchecked we have seen what sort of 'self regulation' internet providers practice, mostly in their own interests. The internet belongs to the people; please do not cut net neutrality regulations!
